

Automata, strings and 3D matching

Strahil Ristov, Ruđer Bošković Institute

Abstract

Finite state automaton is a very useful concept in computer science, mostly used for processing string type data. We will firstly present a brief introduction to the subject, then a particular type of an automaton that we shall call the recursive automaton. Finally, we will present a possible application of string data structures to 3D matching problems.